

Title: Emotion Recognition Abilities and Empathy of Victims of Bullying

Authors: Sarah Woods¹
 Dieter Wolke²
 Stephen Nowicki³
 Lynne Hall⁴

Affiliations: University of Hertfordshire, School of Psychology, UK¹
 University of Warwick, Department of Psychology and Warwick Medical School, Coventry (UK)²
 Emory University, Department of Psychology, Atlanta, Georgia, USA³
 University of Sunderland, School of Computing & Technology, University of Sunderland, UK⁴

Correspondence:
 Professor Dieter Wolke
 Department of Psychology
 University of Warwick
 Coventry CV4 7AL
 United Kingdom
 Tel: +44 024 7652 3537
 Fax: +44 024 7652 4225
 Email: D.Wolke@warwick.ac.uk

Running Title: Emotion Recognition and Victimization

Key Words: victimisation, emotion recognition, empathy, social-information processing

Acknowledgments: This research was conducted as part of the VICTEC project (IST-2001-33310) (www.viectec.org), part-funded by the European Community Framework V Program. We would like to thank all the VICTEC team members for making this study possible. Special thanks also to all the schools in Hertfordshire that took part.